

Email from Marcus Bucklemund on 21st August 2008

1.- Why would you need a promissory note for the parts? I am not disputing that I owe you for the outstanding invoices and you have that in writing (many of the previous emails). I mentioned to you that I could do a payment plan, but could not commit to a large monthly sum, as my "cashflow" is too volatile to know how much money I have left at the end of the month.

2.- We're running around in circles on that one. I am willing to sign a promissory note for a % of the Steroid bike. I won't have a lien attached to the bike, because it has not been titled/registered. We have talked/emailed about this many times. If I sell the bike to someone in California, they require to have the engine number printed on the MSO. So I would need the MSO for the engine. Any chance to get that from you? Without the paperwork, the engine is pretty much worthless.

I sent this email on the 9th August???

Marcus.....you have said to me on the phone you will not

1. do a promissory note or payment plan for the outstanding unpaid invoices
2. provide a Lien / promissory note for my investment in the the Steroid bike please can explain in detail why?

Best regards.....Alistair

I don't know if some of my emails end up in your spam folder, but I emailed you back when you first started inquiring about the frames (that was weeks ago). I told you that I was willing to work with you, and that I needed the specs on the frames (rake, stretch).

I will not be able to send you two frames without charging you. I need to pay bills, and making a frame takes a lot of time, so when I have the choice between working to pay off debt and working to pay urgent bills, I HAVE to choose the latter. I would be able to do 50%, which means I get paid half, and the other half goes toward my debt.

Marcus.....I need to know your answer to my questions because I have to give my customer an answer soon. I am not asking you any difficult questions.....I just need to know.....either yes or no

3. I have another potential customer who might want to buy one completed frame kit and the frame kit in parts for the second frame.
4. If he paid me and I retained this money, and you sent him these parts it would help you pay some of the money you owe back to me.

I need to know urgently because I dont want to mess my customer around regards.....Alistair
